

U. S. APPLE GROWERS FORM AN ASSOCIATION

New Organization Plans to Improve Marketing Conditions of Country.

NOW HAS 75 MEMBERS

Enrollment Is Increasing—
J. C. Whitten, M. U.
Man, on the Roll.

A national association of apple growers with a charter membership of about seventy-five men was formed in St. Louis on the second and third of this month. Some time ago a few of the foremost growers of the United States began the agitation for an association of this kind. Senator Harry F. Dunlap of Illinois and Prof. H. C. Irish of St. Louis, two of the agitators, assumed the duties of temporary chairman and secretary, respectively, of the new organization and Senator Dunlap as chairman, issued a call for the meeting in St. Louis last week. It was then that the association was perfected and put on a working basis.

At the St. Louis meeting Senator Dunlap was made the permanent chairman for the coming year and Professor Irish was elected secretary. Of the seventy-five growers who attended the largest representation was from Missouri. The next largest was from Illinois. At the meeting, J. C. Whitten, professor of horticulture in the University, read a paper on "The Different Kinds of Apple Packages and Their Uses."

The association decided to start active work for the year by considering four important problems. First, an effort will be made to get, each year, an estimate of the size of the crop of the entire country so that the marketing possibilities may be figured upon. Second, the quality of the crop, the good and bad yields, will try to be estimated so that the association may know just what per cent of the total crop will keep over the winter months and what per cent of it must be marketed at once to get the best prices. Third, the kind of packages for the different grades will be taken into consideration. Fourth, a canvass will be made to determine the storage facilities of the country so that something may be learned regarding the proper condition to store the crop for the winter months.

Professor Whitten said today that while the new association has started with only seventy-five members, there are applications coming in all the time at a fairly fast rate. Membership to the association has been placed at $10 for the year. In addition to this, annual dues amounting to 10 cents per acre are charged up to a maximum of $50 for each man.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—"We are standing firm," was the word brought from the conference with the federal board of mediation on behalf of the trainmen of the country by A. B. Garretson, following a session during which the government mediators met first with the representatives of the railway managers and then with the brotherhood heads. It was made clear that the trainmen have not given an inch in their demands for an 8-hour day. Garretson declared they would insist upon the granting of their demands in full.

Judge Chambers said the board expected to hold another meeting with the railway managers this afternoon, after which they would confer with the representatives of the employees again. All meetings were executive and no statement was made at their conclusion. Judge Chambers said he had not communicated with President Wilson as to the situation.

By United Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Representatives of the four brotherhoods of railway employes were to get together today with members of the United States Board of Mediation and Conciliation to present their reasons for demanding an 8-hour day and time and one-half for over-time for all freight train employes.

The federal board heard the nineteen railway managers yesterday. Following the conferences today the mediators planned to draft an agreement which will be submitted to both sides. If the proposed terms of settlement are rejected, additional meetings with representatives of both sides will be held.

There will be no joint meeting of the mediators and the representatives of both the employers and the employees until some tentative mediation agreement has been approved by both sides.

HIGBEE PLAYS HERE SUNDAY

Blues and Browns to Meet on Diamond—Taylor Will Pitch.

The Higbee Blues will come to Columbia Sunday and attempt to repeat their victory of last month, when they beat the Browns here by a score of 4 to 2. The local team is in much better form now, however, and expect to turn the tables.

Taylor and Everett, two spitball pitchers, will probably be on the mound for their respective teams, though Taylor has been quite sick this week with a threatened attack of typhoid fever. The hard-hitting Winegar will be behind the bat for the Browns, while Harriman will receive Everett's shots.

Manager Taylor has been trying this week to get a man for first base to fill the shoes of Mason, who went home the first for the week. So far he has not succeeded in securing a suitable man for the job. The rest of the line-up will be unchanged.

The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

Perry Barker to Arkansas U.

Percy B. Barker, extension associate professor in the College of Agriculture last year, was recently elected head of the agronomy department of the college of agriculture at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, Ark. The agronomy department at the University of Arkansas includes farm crops and soil, as well as farm management.

U. S. DOCTORS HELP THE RUSSIAN INJURED

American Hospital Is Established at Khoy, 45 Miles From Julfa.

IN A BARREN LAND

Many Children, In Addition to Soldiers, Tended by the Physicians.

By WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PETROGRAD, Aug. 9.—The Stars and Stripes today flap in breezes wafted across fields famous in the United States as the land of the Holy Bible. The flag flies free over the door of an American hospital where pretty American girls and able American doctors care for Russian sick and wounded.

The hospital is at Khoy 45 miles south of Julfa, on the frontier between Russia and Persia. To the northwest of Khoy the icy dome of Mount Ararat stands lined against the skyline. 17,000 feet high, or nearly 2,000 feet higher than Mount Blanc. Here Noah's Ark is supposed to have rested after the flood.

To the southwest of Khoy lie the slopes where Abraham and Isaac tended their flocks. There too is the scene of the most famous of all famous crimes, the murder of Abel by his brother, Cain.

No Julfa-Khoy Railroad.

There is no railroad from Julfa to Khoy and the dirt road is very bad. It takes four horses to pull a carriage. At first the way lies in a desert with barren mountains on both sides but gradually as one approaches Khoy, the terrain smoothes itself out and richer soil, aided by irrigation, gives vegetation a chance; and here one still sees droves of sheep grazing just as they did in the days when Abraham begat Isaac.

In a valley of orchards and gardens lies Khoy, surrounded by its mud walls. Low mud houses along narrow, crooked streets surrounding gayly decorated and colorful bazars which form the center of the place compose the city, while just outside is the conspicuous building of the Russian Consul. Opposite this is the American Hospital with its Yankee flag flying, a building long, broad and squat.

An American Hospital Staff.

The hospital staff, including Dr. Hazlett, Dr. Dickey, Dr. McClintic and several American nurses, originally was at Kiev, but when the Russian retreatment from Galicia began all hospitals were evacuated to points further east. At first the Americans tended wounded at a temporary hospital near the Kiev railway station, but upon being assigned to the Army of the Caucasus they moved to Tiflis. From Tiflis they went to Khoy to be nearer the Russian front than operating in the region of Erzerum.

At first there were many contagious cases. And the beds were crowded with sick refugees from Armenia, Syria and other districts. There were many children too, to be looked after, many of them in the most pitiful condition. One Syrian girl mentioned by the American Commercial Attache Baker who visited the hospital, had been found by the wayside in a dying condition, her legs below the knees frozen, vermin filling her hair and covering her body. She was scarcely more than a skeleton, in rags and starving. She was the last of a family, the victims of Turkish massacres and had escaped only by seeking refuge in the mountains. Both legs were amputated above the knees and her life was saved.

Conditions Got Better.

Conditions rapidly got better in Khoy and vicinity, the contagious disease being practically stamped out so Doctors Dickey and McClintic, and Nurse Miss Lee were transferred to field hospital at Kazvin and later to Hammedan, Central Persia. Dr. Hazlett remained in charge at Khoy.

Russian and American ladies are now nursing the sick and wounded side by side at Khoy, Russian and American surgeons in charge. Over the roof the starry banner of Uncle Sam and the white, blue and red tricolor of the little White Father, are rippling side by side. And, to show his appreciation of their work, the Grand Duke Nicholas has given the order for imperial decorations for each American doctor and nurse.

TO TEACH COOKS HOW TO COOK

Texas Boarding-House Keepers Take University Home Economics Course.

DENTON, Tex., Aug. 8.—President F. M. Bralley of the College of Industrial Arts of Texas, in Denton, has originated something in extension work—a short course for boarding house keepers in cookery. The course includes a series of lectures on food selection, preparation, serving and care.

The immediate need of such a course was felt because many young women attending the Texas College of Industrial Arts cannot be accommodated in the dormitories and are forced to board. While some of the boarding house keepers serve well-balanced meals, others have been known to serve a combination something like this:

Baked beans Sausage
String beans Black-eyed peas
Bread and butter.

Other Combinations.

And such combinations as mince pie, potatoes, rice, fried mush and syrup, coffee and peach cobbler.

An instance was reported of a woman serving at the same meal cold slaw, sauerkraut and salt pork with boiled cabbage.

The lecture course was begun with an invitation to all women of the college community who had C. I. A. students in their homes.

The first course was six lectures on the care and maintenance of the culinary department of a big family home. The first of these lectures was attended by only the boarding house keepers but soon the women of Denton began to attend, and the attendance has grown to such an extent that a regular course of instruction with meetings will be included in the year's work of the college.

Course to Be Continued.

Demonstration work is carried on for the benefit of the women keepers of boarders. The compositions and values of the different foods are presented effectively and each day one simple dish is served the class.

Examples in the buying of large and small quantities of food supplies are given, and the plans of the food department for the big State dormitories at the college are discussed.

THEIR BIRTHDAY

Percy M. Klass.

Percy M. Klass, city councilman and a partner in the Klass Commission Co., celebrated his thirty-first birthday today. Mr. Klass was graduated from the Columbia high school and spent about three years in the University. About nine years ago he was forced through ill health to abandon his studies. Shortly thereafter he joined his father, J. A. Klass, in the commission business.

Mr. Klass was elected councilman from the third ward two years ago. He is Master of the Twilight Masonic lodge and is one of the youngest men who have held that office.

Harry M. Craig.

Harry M. Craig, superintendent of the Herald-Statesman Publishing Company, was born August 10, 1877, at Madison, Ind.

Until he was twelve years old he was raised in an orphan's home. He then became a printer, working in his native home until 1897, then coming West, where he worked for eighteen years in Ottawa, Kan. About twelve years ago he was offered a position as teacher in an industrial school but turned it down to follow the printing trade. He also worked twelve years for Thomas Morgan, the well-known Kansan.

In March 1915, Mr. Craig moved to Columbia and became superintendent for the Herald-Statesman Publishing Company. He is married and has four children.

Herbert J. Davenport.

Herbert J. Davenport, formerly Dean of the School of the Commerce, was born at Wilmington, Vt., on August 10, 1861.

He received degrees from the University of South Dakota, Harvard Law School, University of Leipzig, the School of Political Science at Paris and the University of Chicago.

After receiving his doctor's degree in Paris in 1898, Mr. Davenport became principal of the high school at Lincoln, Neb. Four years later he was made instructor in political economy at the University of Chicago and in turn became assistant and associate professor in the same department.

In 1908 Mr. Davenport was made head of the Department of Political Science at the University of Missouri, which position he held until this summer, when he accepted an offer to become director of graduate study in economics at Cornell University.

Mr. Davenport is the author of several books on economic theory, the most noteworthy being "Economics of Enterprise," published in 1913. He has also been a frequent contributor to the leading journals of political economy.

TELLS OF RURAL CREDITS BILL

S. F. Coney Addresses Commercial Club—Series of Talks to Start.

"The spirit of the proposed Federal Farm Loan Act is to bring the producer and consumer more closely together," said Frank Coney in his talk on "Rural Credits" at the weekly luncheon of the Commercial Club at 12 o'clock today at Harris.

"It will mean the mobilization of credit and will mean that the farmer can make his credit as effective as that of the commercial man. The act will furnish money as cheaply as is possible, and at a lower rate than is prevalent at present. The farmer will have from five to forty years in which to pay the loan."

"The small farmer will benefit, for he can borrow 50 per cent of the appraised value of his land, regardless of the size of his farm."

"There will be twelve land bank districts, composed of groups of whole states, and the system is operated as a bureau of the United States Treasury department."

At the next meeting of the Commercial Club, August 17, the discussion will be "The Hall Theater." At the following luncheon a series of talks will be begun. These will be made by representatives of various trades and professions. Among the first to talk in the series will be A. Ross Hill, President of the University, and C. E. Ross, Superintendent of the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Company.
